

Bio

Rob Grad is a multidisciplinary artist and musician. His visual work has been featured in solo exhibitions, group exhibitions, and he has received commissions from individuals and corporations. His most recent commission, "The View From Here" hangs in the San Francisco International Airport.

His heavily layered work is the result of an intricate and time consuming process he developed which combines his photography, paintings and drawings. Using plexiglass, wood and an assortment of other 3D objects, the images are cut and assembled both digitally and physically.

His music career began fresh out of high school when he signed a record deal with RCA Records with his band Kik Tracee. They were featured on MTV, toured the US, and performed with acts such as Bon Jovi and Joe Walsh. His musical works have been featured in movies and TV shows on networks including HBO, CBS, ABC, MTV, the WB. He was also a TEDx speaker in Culver City, California.
